

Shadows of the Unknown

Once shrouded in darkness, awakened from centuries of slumber, Jacob Welshman left his crypt. Only hours left of the night, he hunted, nourishing his hunger. He was weak, but with every drop of blood he savored, his strength renewed. His body tingled with the promise of a new day. The sun slowly rose above the cliffs as he hurried back to the safety of his crypt. He saw her standing there, like an angel; she mesmerized him. Her hair was the color of wheat, her skin as white as snow. In that moment he knew their lives were intertwined. Reluctantly he blended into the morning mist. Through the past and the present, Amanda falls in love with man and vampire. Enemies of Jacobas past threaten Amandaas existence. Can Amanda learn to live and love Jacob as he is, vampire, creature of the night? Shead made love to both, Jacob of the past, and of her time. He was the same man. Amanda no longer had to live in the shadows of the unknown alone, but together she and Jacob proclaimed their love under the moonlight, and together were forever.
