

New Mexico Transportation and Planning in 2050

As professional transportation planner Aaron Sussman notes, Where we live, how we live, and how we travel are deeply intertwined. This E-short edition from New Mexico 2050 concentrates on developments in transportation and the factors that will continue to shape the states future, from population and housing to travel patterns and funding. ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS Aaron Sussman, MA in community planning, MA in Latin American studies, is a senior transportation planner with the New Mexico Mid-Region Council of Governments and a member of the American Institute of Certified Planners. Fred Harris, JD with distinction, is a twice-elected former U.S. senator from Oklahoma and a longtime professor now professor emeritus of political science at the University of New Mexico, where he is still director of the UNM Fred Harris Congressional Internship Program. An award-winning author of three novels, he has also produced nineteen nonfiction books on public policy, politics, and government, including, as coeditor, Locked in the Poorhouse: Cities, Race, and Poverty in the United States, and, as coauthor, a recent e-book, These People Want to Work: Immigration Reform.
