Excerpt from Old World Traits Transplanted

The material in this volume was gathered by the Division of Treatment of Immigrant Heritages of Studies in Methods of Americanization. Americanization in these studies has been considered as the union of native and foreign born in all the most fundamental relationships and activities of our national life. For Americanization is the uniting of new with native-born Americans in fuller common understanding and appreciation to secure by means of individual and collective self-direction the highest welfare of all. Such Americanization should perpetuate no unchangeable political, domestic, and economic regime delivered once for all to the fathers, but a growing and broadening national life, inclusive of the best wherever found. With all our rich heritages, Americanism will develop best through a mutual giving and taking of contributions from both newer and older Americans in the interest of the commonweal. These studios have followed such an understanding of Americanization. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
