

The Girl Who Almost Died Of Love: A Novel of Love, Romance and Business (Volume 1)

An unworldly teenager whos contemplating suicide. A faithless first boyfriend. A selfish mother. A private clinic filled with a group of worldly-bordering-on-degenerate residents all too willing to help an American Innocent forget the life she left behind. It goes without saying that every woman, however sophisticated and confident she becomes, was once seventeen, prey to all the insecurities that can plague a girl with little experience of the world. As a teenager Maggie McLaurin looks like one lucky young woman. Shes smart, lovely, and advantaged. But looks can be deceiving, for the girl is withering from emotional despair. Maggie has had reason to be unhappy, more than one in fact. The girl has never recovered from the death of her father, is disliked by her mother, and has been abruptly abandoned by Tom Scott, the only boy shes ever loved, the one to whom she clung as a lifeline, the one with whom she thought shed spend the rest of her life. When Tom has a fling with another girl and walks out without explanation, Maggie goes into a physical and emotional death spiral. Thats when her mother, whose social calendar doesnt allow time to deal with a high-maintenance daughter, sends her to an Italian clinic owned by a friend of the family. There, the sorrowful girl is thrown into a world with the power to corrupt those most in need of healing. Some of the residents are nice to Maggie - like the young woman whos the mistress of one of the wealthiest men in Europe. Others - like the owner and operator of the clinic - recognize her vulnerability and try to incorporate her in their fun and games. Its a tricky situation, but all Maggie must do is keep her cool for a couple of months, and shell be eighteen, old enough to leave the clinic on her own recognizance, take control of her destiny, and defeat her mothers plans to seize her inheritance. In this first book of Gail Hewitts Love,

Romance, and ... Series, events begin to form the nature of the young woman who is determined to depend only on her own wits and effort to get by.
