Not illustrated. 1892 Excerpt: ...War, 1822. Alexander Maenaughten of Macuaughten figures in the same work. b Major Gen. William Drummond, youngest son of John, 2nd Lord Maderty; after the failnreof the present rising he entered the Russian service, but returned to Scotland after the Restoration, and was created Viscount Strathallan in 1686 (d. 1088). Archibald, 2nd Lord Napier, nephew of Montrose, succ. 16 5; d. early in 1660. For tho letter to him from the King which Mews sent on to his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of John Erskine, Earl of Mar, see Cal. Clar. St. Pap., iii. p. 2. him, it may bee som refreshing to finde the King so kinde to him 1655. and her. This may perhaps bee censured (as that other to Ma. G. Drummond) for too greate a presumption; but iff I have errd, it is an error of the right hand, and therefore I despayre not of my Pardon. Haueing given you this short (and God knows too sad) account of affaires, I suppose it will bee soone resolved whither it bee proper at this tyme to send those supplyes which were intended. I wish wee may have a good occasion to vse them, iff not here, els where. I hope all is not layd aside in England; a little motion there would yet give life to the now dying condicion of affaires here. I haue formerly both spoken and writ my minde so freely (perhaps in som mens judgements, who are not so hot for action as I am, too freely) vpon this subject that I shall add no more, but only wish, iff the same slovnnes which hitherto wee have bin guilty of bee still continued, 1 may bee a false Prophet. You will perceiue both by the inclosed and when you shall discourse with Lo. Napier that many Persons whom I represented vndir a fayre character haue since vndeserved it; but I never pretended to haue the skill to foresee mens reprobation, nor durst I euer judge ...
