Earl Bathurtt to Field Marshal the Duke of Wellington. My DEAB Lobd, Downing Strett, 9th April, 1816. It has become a great object with the Opposition to prove that the maintenance of the British army in France will be a charge upon this country, and they hope by that means to make the whole system unpopular. I think there is no doubt that the receipts will cover the expenditure, unless there should arise any unforeseen demands; but it is very desirable to keep down the expense in order to meet any such charge. One way is obviously to keep aa nearly as possible to the number of troops which we have stipulated to maintain, not only on account of the additional expense direct with regard to, but also because we must account with the French government for all excess of rations. As far as I have been able hitherto to make out the annual charge, estimating the amount of the force as low as 31,500, including officers and artillery, commissariat, and other extraordinary charges, it will be 1,150,000. Our receipts, on the supposition of the whole to which we are entitled being received and equally divided during the five years, will be at the rate of 1,270,000. This would give us an annual surplus, on which, however, we must not too much depend, as all calculations on extr.iordinaries of the army exceed the estimate; and there is some reason to believe that we shall be obliged to give way to a demand made by Hanover on Brunswick for part of the contribution, for the whole of which we hare taken credit. The commissariat charge is stated to be 700000. annually. Do yon think that this can be any how reduced, as it appears a large ...
